For my Beloved Family

Introduction

The scent of roses of life accompanies me through the day and embraces me during the night.

It saturates the everyday life and gives requiescence to the soul.

*It deludes any worries
with its fragrance,
so that they
almost vanish
into thin air.*

*It provides ideas
to create life,
to fathom the ego,
to reinvent the self.*

*Thus I wish you,
while inhaling this
scent of roses
many new inspirations
that make life
worth living.*

Ars amandi (The Art of Love)

*Is it an art - being able to love?
Or is it a gift - being able to love?
Can only the one give love who has been loved before?
Does being loved
precede the ability to love?*

*Let us look into the eyes
of a happy child,
allowed to experience a lot of love and still does.*

*Already now this little child
gratifies us
by smiling at us.
Its happiness - is our happiness.*

*We put all our love
into the little child,
to form
a loving being.
Thus enriched
the little child grows up
and later then,
as an adult
he feels an inner desire
to share
the gift of love*

devote himself - giving himself away and immersed in this happiness he thinks back to his childhood.

*And all the love
he experienced,
all the love
he was given,
he wants to share.*

*And thus is growing from anew
a little child
that, beloved and blessed
may behold the world.
This way Ars amandi bestows
all generations
and likes to stay
where love is lived,
where the heart is given freely
and thus widens the view

towards God
who embodies love,
who guides the world,
nourishes it with His love and instils it in the human heart and therewith breaks the evil so that Ars amandi

may rule the world.*

Breath of Love

*Your breath of love
permeates my being,
gives me wings,
deeply immerses
into my soul*

*so that it bounces
and sings deeply inside of me,
brings sound
to the breath of love
that arises from Your love for me.*
